Synagogue Council Head Was Rabbi And Lawyer

The Rev. Dr. Norman Salit, a rabbi, lawyer and former president of the Synagogue Council of America, died in New York Hospital after a long illness. He was 64 years old. In 1958 Dr. Salit visited Germany at the invitation of the German Government to discuss the problems of post-war anti-Semitism, says the New York Times. He was the first American Jewish leader in twenty years to be so invited.

On his return, after having conferred with President Theodor Heuss and Chancellor Adenauer, Dr. Salit expressed "great disappointment" over the German failure to eradicate anti-Semitism. He said that German leaders accepted the responsibility for Hitler, but that the German people did not.

"Anti-Semitism in Germany is too deeply rooted," he said, "to yield to anything but the most thorough campaign of extirpation. A deeply intrenched disease cannot be cured by a surface-scratching remedy. The therapy must be in proportion to the malady."

In 1955 he presented to the Netherlands Government a scroll of appreciation for the humane treatment shown to Jews by the Dutch during World War II.

Throughout his life, Dr. Salit was a leader in religious, patriotic, and professional groups. In addition to heading the Synagogue Council in 1953-54, he was executive director of the Wartime Emergency Commission for Conservative Judaism in World War II; director of the Freedom Foundation; and a member of the New York County Lawyers Association. He was also on the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America, and did considerable writing for publications on Jewish and world issues.

Rabbi Salit was born in New York. He graduated from Townsend Harris High School and in 1916 from City College, says the New York Times. He received his law degree with honors from New York University and was admitted to the New York bar in 1920. The same year he was ordained a rabbi at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, where he won the Lehman Public Speaking Prize.

W.J.C. Issues Fact Sheet On Polish Property Claims

The World Jewish Congress in New York has issued a seven-point fact sheet giving basic details of the recently concluded American-Polish Agreement relating to property nationalized or otherwise taken by Poland. Dr. Nehemiah Robinson, Director of the World Jewish Congress Institute of Jewish Affairs, notes that registrations that were filed in 1957 and 1958 are not considered as claims but were merely for the information of the U.S. negotiators.

These are the basic facts for claimants:

1. The American-Polish Agreement became effective July 16, 1960.

2. It is restricted to property (or rights) nationalized, appropriated, or otherwise taken by Poland, and which belonged, from the date of such nationalization or taking until July 16, 1960, to nationals of the United States or to U.S. companies.

3. The Foreign Claims Settlement Commission of the U.S. has been authorized to adjudicate claims falling under the Agreement. Claims must be filed with the Commission by September 30, 1961, on official claims forms.

4. All requests for official claims forms must be sent to the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission, Washington 25, D.C.

5. Registrations filed in 1957 and 1958 are not considered as claims. These claimants, as others, must file before September 30, 1961.

6. Since the total amount of recognized claims cannot be foretold, it is not known how the amount agreed upon between the two governments will be distributed. The Foreign Claims Commission is bound by the International Claims Settlement Act which provides that all awards of $1,000 or less will be paid in full, and at least $1,000 will be paid on awards exceeding that sum. The remaining amount, after these basic sums are paid, will be distributed proportionately.

7. Official registration forms will become available in September, 1960, from the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission to whom requests for such forms may be mailed at any time.

Leave Religion Out Of U. S. Election, Clergy Ask

The nomination of the second Roman Catholic ever to run for President of the United States brought appeals from Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish clergymen for a campaign without reference to religion. Nearly every clergyman who commented on the nomination of Senator John F. Kennedy asked that the candidate be considered on his merits, not on his religion.

Not one of the many clergymen who commented mentioned Alfred E. Smith by name. He was the first Catholic to be nominated for the Presidency. The religious issue in the 1928 campaign, in which Mr. Smith was defeated, was so bitter that it was one of the principal reasons for the founding of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

The strongest voice against Mr. Kennedy was that of the Rev. Dr. W. A. Criswell, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Dallas, Texas, the nation's largest all-white Baptist congregation. Dr. Criswell, who said his 12,000 members included Billy Graham, the evangelist, stood on an earlier charge that election of a Catholic would "spell the death of a free church in a free state and our hopes of continuance of full religious liberty in America."

In Pittsburgh, Methodist Bishop Lloyd C. Wicke said Mr. Kennedy's nomination was the "will of the party." He predicted "some religious prejudice" in the fall campaign, says the New York Times. Many leading Protestant clergymen discounted the religious question. Among them was the Rev. Dr. Dana McLean Greeley, president of the American Unitarian Association. He found Kennedy qualified to be President because he had pledged himself to the principle of separation of church and state.

Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver, of Cleveland, Ohio, a leader of American Judaism, expressed the hope that "the parties stick to the issues so the American people can elect the best-qualified person for the Presidency."

The Rev. Dr. Hartley Granden, executive secretary of the New Hampshire Council of Churches, said the issue of Catholicism might be drawn into the campaign but there was no clear indication that would happen. The Rev. Edward T. Cook, of Manchester, N.H., former Executive Secretary of the state council, said he thought the voters would judge the candidates on their merits, not on their religious beliefs.

Dr. O. H. Hovey, of Minneapolis, General Secretary of the American Lutheran Church, with 3,000,000 members, said Protestants would feel easier about voting for a Catholic if the Vatican would make a statement on its relation to Catholic political officials. But he added that the "American ideal" should exclude the mixing of religion in political discussion. Mr. Kennedy's West Virginia primary victory demonstrated that Protestants in substantial numbers would vote for a Catholic, he said.

Rabbi Albert Minda, of Minneapolis, Minn., vice-president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, said voters should judge the candidates on the basis of the political issues involved. "I imagine that in some sections of the population the religious elements will play a role," Rabbi Minda said, "but on the whole I think the nomination has shown that the religious element did not play a major role."

The Rev. Robert Holloway, of the United Evangelical Presbyterian Church, in Chicago, said he could see no conflict in a Protestant voting for a Catholic, says the New York Times. "Some Protestants are fearful about this matter," he said, "but I don't think their fear is well founded. As for myself, I'll leave the religious issue out when I vote for the man I feel best qualified for the Presidency."

The Rt. Rev. Austin Pardue, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Pittsburgh, vowed that he would fight religious prejudice wherever he found it. He said he would speak firmly against evidence of discrimination against Protestant, Catholic, or Jew.

"I hope the election is decided on the basis of issues — that the best man is elected," said Dr. John Vedder Edwards, assistant pastor of the National Presbyterian Church in Washington. "People should vote on the basis of the urgency of the times."

Nazi Fugitive Goes Home, Leaves, Without Police Action

Ludwig Zind, self-confessed Nazi, who fled a West German prison sentence for making anti-Semitic remarks, recently returned to Germany and slipped out again without any action by the police. Zind is reported to have been taken into custody as he was about to board a ship at Naples for Tripoli. Samuel Bronfman, of Montreal, chairman of the North American Division of the World Jewish Congress, stated in New York that the global body had learned that Zind, a 53-year-old teacher of Offenburg, had recently been in West Germany and had, in fact, been photographed. In addition, he had written a letter to a German magazine saying that he was in the country.

Zind fled West Germany when, after declaring that not enough Jews had been gassed by Hitler, he was given a year in jail in 1958. While appealing, Zind booked passage to Cairo with his wife. The affair created a furor in Bonn. Mr. Bronfman said that Dr. Nehemiah Robinson, director of the World Jewish Congress Institute of Jewish Affairs, learned that Zind was employed as professor of geology at the University of Libya.

According to information reaching the World Jewish Congress, Zind's son visited his father in Libya but returned to Germany to study. A daughter, living with her

U. S. Senator Calls On Israelis To Repatriate Some Arabs; On Arabs To Resettle Others

U.S. Senator J. W. Fulbright suggested a possible solution to the problem of Arab refugees as a first step toward ending the Arab-Israeli conflict. Reporting to the Senate on his six-and-a-half-day visit to the Middle East last month, the Arkansas Democrat, who is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, offered this formula:

"Perhaps the Israelis could agree to repatriation or compensation as the United Nations has recommended, with the understanding that the numbers who might accept repatriation would be of manageable size over a period of years.

"Perhaps the Arabs could indicate a willingness to help resettle those who might decide against repatriation, if reasonable compensation is agreed upon."

There are now about 1,000,000 Arab refugees from Israeli territory living largely on United Nations relief in Jordan, the Syrian and Gaza areas of the United Arab Republic, and Lebanon, says the New York Times. During the eleven years since the Arab-Israeli war the number of refugees has gradually increased by excess of births over deaths.

The Arabs have resisted resettlement and insisted that every refugee has a right to return to his home in Israel or to receive compensation. The Israelis, while agreeing to compensation, have rejected repatriation to Israel of any except individual hardship cases on the ground that a large Arab influx would threaten Israel's security.

Senator Fulbright called the Arab-Israeli conflict "the most all-pervasive situation" influencing United States foreign policy in the Middle East. The present state of the conflict, he said, is "crucial."

Noting that leaders on both sides were "considerably more rational" in private than in public pronouncements, the Senator speculated whether a formula to "move the problem off dead center," might not be worked out in "quiet, off-the-record conversations."

If states within the area could make no progress, he proposed enlisting assistance from "neutral, non-political" social scientists, economists, retired diplomats, and educators.

Senator Fulbright made what appeared to be a personal appeal to President Gamal Abdel Nasser, of the United Arab Republic, and Premier David Ben-Gurion, of Israel, "both able, dedicated men," whom he met during his tour, says the New York Times. He declared he believed that "each of these men has the ability to lead his own people, as well as those qualities which enable true statesmen, by reason, to overcome irrational emotion."

Diplomatic analysts said that the weakness in Senator Fulbright's proposal was that it assumed a desire for peaceful settlement on both sides. While the Israelis have expressed such a desire, the Arabs still insist that they intend to destroy Israel.

Senator Fulbright said that the

THE SEA CREST BRINGS OUT THE FRIENDLY NEIGHBOR IN YOU

People confuse us. A man will live three houses from his neighbor (or in an apartment on the same floor)...their total contribution to neighborliness will be a grunted greeting and an observation on the weather. Let these same two check into the Sea Crest...they'll Talk a storm. We Saw This Happen...

Two gentlemen were treading water a few yards from shore while their families relaxed in beach chairs. We overheard... "you know, I've been everywhere but never swam in water like this...it's tepid yet it tingles...it's warm yet it exhilarates... On coming out of the water one turned to us to say..."you know that fellow lives down the street from me...we said more to one another in the few minutes we were in the water than we've done in the ten years we've been neighbors"...

Come to the Cape - The Sea Crest will bring out the friend of your neighbor in you. You'll want to Stay and Stay-by-the-Sea on-the-Sand Under-the-Stars of Old Silver Beach on Captivating Cape Cod.

SYNAGOGUE COUNCIL

It was said that he went to law school in the afternoons and evenings and attended the Seminary in the mornings.

From 1924 to 1929, Dr. Salit was the religious leader of Congregation Shaaray Tefila in Far Rockaway, Queens. He gave up his ministry in the latter year to devote more time to his law practice. He was head of the Queens County Bar Association's committee on legislation from 1933 to 1937.

As executive director of the Wartime Emergency Commission for Conservative Judaism, Dr. Salit helped those congregations whose rabbis had entered military service. For his work he was recognized in 1946 by the Jewish Theological Seminary for "faithful and distinguished service to faith and country."

He was an unsuccessful candidate in 1947 on the Democratic ticket for presiding supervisor of Nassau County, and for Children's Court judge in 1949, says the New York Times. Dr. Salit, who lived at 160 Wildacre Avenue, Lawrence, L. I., is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ruth Salit, and a daughter, Mrs. Naomi Birnbach, of New York.

LEAVE RELIGION

In Cleveland, the Rev. John Bruere, pastor of Calvary Presbyterian Church, said he considered the nomination of Senator Kennedy a clear indication of freedom of religion in the United States. Catholicism will be only a minor issue in the campaign, he said.

The Rev. Leonard Tinker, chairman of the South Iowa Methodist Board of Christian-Social Concerns, said that non-Catholic Americans would not be bigoted in their choice of a President. The Rev. Louis Eckols, director of evangelism for the American Baptist Convention in Iowa, also expressed the belief that a candidate's religion should have no bearing on his qualifications for the Presidency.

The Rev. Jack Cooper, General Presbyter of the Presbytery of Albany, said, according to the New York Times, that it would be against the position of the Presbyterian Church and the United States Constitution to support or oppose a candidate on religious grounds.

Vatican sources led the Roman Catholic comment on Senator Kennedy's nomination. They said the fact he had been chosen was proof that Catholicism was not a factor in the campaign. The nomination is "a good sign for the future" of the United States, one Vatican spokesman said.

Msgr. John M. Kelly, editor of the Catholic publication New World, said in Chicago that Mr. Kennedy's nomination proved many Protestants would like to see him elected.

"If a man is devoutly religious, in whatever faith, I think he would be much better qualified in view of the fact that in our Pledge of Allegiance we speak of our nation 'under God,'" Msgr. Kelly said. "It is a certainty that if a Catholic is elected, he will not be submitted to any pressure from the Catholic hierarchy or the Catholic people as a group, and least of all from the Vatican."

The Rev. Joseph P. Varden, assistant editor of The Evangelist, the official weekly newspaper of the Catholic diocese, of Albany, said that to Catholics, Mr. Kennedy was "just another candidate. We're very much aware of the other candidates for whom Catholics had preferences," he said.

Career Woman Uses Hats As Her Trade-Mark

Some women, Hedda Hopper to wit, use hats as their trade-mark. Others, a somewhat larger group, buy them for a psychological lift. Mrs. Caroline K. Simon, New York State's attractive Secretary of State, uses them both to attract and disarm her public.

"I love hats and always have," the tall, silver-haired Mrs. Simon said in an interview with the New York Times in her capacious office on lower Broadway. "Since I deal with a great many persons or groups of people in the course of my work, I also feel an obligation to look as pleasant as possible."

Not the least of her reasons is the fact that the general public seems to expect a woman in office to be a hard-driving, almost masculine type, a notion quickly belied by Mrs. Simons' feminine appearance and quiet good taste. (Among her other, multudinous duties, she is budgetary boss of the State Athletic Commission, the State Racing Commission and the State Harness Racing Commission.)

In her late fifties, Mrs. Simon is blue-eyed, soft-voiced and employs gentle persistence rather than bombast to make a point. She is married to Irving W. Halpern, Chief Probation Officer, Court of General Sessions. He thoroughly approves his wife's millinery bent.

"Actually, I don't buy many hats, since I find it almost impossible to discard one once it is mine," Mrs. Simon said, reports the New York Times. "Sally Victor is my great weakness and, while I have little time to shop, I do manage to nip into Sally's."

Mrs. Simon's husband, however, is responsible for the unexpected extra hat. "We're very fond of taking walks on the week-end," Mrs. Simon said. "Occasionally my husband will see a hat in a shop window and say 'you really ought to have that.' Most of my clothes are quite simple, basic styles, and changing hats makes them seem to go farther, somehow."

Great American Pianist To Teach At Toronto Conservatory

Jacques Abram, distinguished American pianist, will join the teaching staff of the Faculty of Music, Royal Conservatory of Music, University of Toronto, commencing September. This senior appointment was announced by Dr. Arnold Walter, Director of the Faculty. A graduate of the Juilliard School of Music, Mr. Abram has been soloist with over sixty major orchestras in North America and Europe, working with conductors like Stokowski, Mitropoulos, Ormandy, Monteux, Munch, Steinberg, Sargent, Kurtz, and Susskind. He has done six European tours and concertised extensively from coast to coast on this continent since his debut in 1936 as soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra in that city's Academy of Music and Carnegie Hall, in New York.

Prior to his debut, Jacques Abram had the unusual distinction of winning two annual major American awards, competing with some of the finest young talent in the United States, the Schubert Memorial Prize and the National Federation of Music Clubs Award. Born in Texas, Mr. Abram first studied at the Curtis Institute with David Saperton and the renowned Josef Hoffman. At Juilliard, where he was on a fellowship for seven years and received the Artist Diploma with distinction, he was a pupil of Ernest Hutcheson, president of the School.

Prominent on records, he has worked under the British H.M.V., E.M.S., Allegro, and Musicraft labels. Mr. Abram premiered the Benjamin Britten Piano Concerto in the United States several years ago (he has since recorded it with the famed Philharmonia of London) and also concertos by Arthur Benjamin and Jacques de Menasce. He was the first pianist to perform Gershwin's Rhapsody In Blue and Concerto In F in Holland. Possessor of a huge repertoire of standard works, he will record the two Brahms piano concerti in Europe this winter. He played both on the same programme at a Brahms Festival in the Netherlands recently.

Held in equal esteem by press and public alike, Jacques Abram has elicited statements from music critics like "Abram left no doubt of his absolute mastery at the keyboard" (New York Times); "Uncommon dramatic power and beauty of phrasing" (London Daily Express); "A great artist and a pianist of the very first class" (Der Vrijevolk, Amsterdam, Netherlands). Perhaps his most cherished comment is one by Dimitri Mitropoulos when Mr. Abram was soloist with the New York Philharmonic under the Mitropoulos baton in March, 1958. Mr. Mitropoulos wrote, in part: "You are among the greatest artists playing in America ... the music comes from within you and it lives with the flexibility and superb rhythm of great expression ... I could not even possibly praise you too much."

The list of orchestras with which Jacques Abram has been soloist is matched by few other contemporary keyboard artists. These include the New York Philharmonic (five times); N.B.C.; Philadelphia, Chicago, San Francisco, Cleveland, St. Louis, Los Angeles, Houston, Dallas, and National Symphony Orchestras. In Canada, he has played with the Montreal Symphony, and in Mexico City, the National Orchestra, conducted by Carlos Chavez. His European orchestra list includes groups like the Vienna, B.B.C., Royal Philharmonic Philharmonia, Halle, Danish State Radio, Hilversum, Berlin RIAS, and Stuttgart.

Married and the father of two boys, Mr. Abram takes up permanent residence in Toronto in September. He will teach leading students in the Faculty's Artist Diploma Course, and specially selected and gifted teen-agers in the Conservatory's School of Music. He formerly was artist-in-residence at Oklahoma College for Women, and has given many special master classes throughout the United States.

Submission To Special Committee Of The House Of Commons On Bill Of Rights

Canadian Jewish Congress appeared before the Special Committee of the House of Commons dealing with the proposed Bill of Rights and submitted Congress views in a written statement signed by Michael Garber, Q.C., immediate past chairman of the national executive of the Canadian Jewish Congress, and Saul Hayes, executive vice-president of Congress. The Submission was supplemented by oral representations. Bill C 79 before the Parliament is called the "Act for the Recognition and Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedom". The statement indicated:

"The Canadian Jewish Congress has been intensely interested in and directly concerned with the promotion of human rights and fundamental freedoms, both by international and domestic legislation. A delegation of our Congress attended the 1945 San Francisco Conference advising on the formulation of some of the basic articles of the United Nations Charter dealing with the protection of human rights, and ever since has been active in the field. Our Congress has worked for the rights of all human beings and regarded the rights for Jews as being simply one manifestation of the rights for all.

"We like to recall that on June 9, 1948, we appeared before the Special Joint Committee on Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms of the Senate and the House of Commons of Canada, then sitting under the chairmanship of the Rt. Hon. Mr. J. L. Ilsley and the Hon. Sen. L. M. Gouin. We then submitted a statement on the significant contribution which Canada could make by associating herself with the international endeavours, then incipient, for the protection and preservation of human rights and we made a number of comments on the drafting of an International Declaration of Human Rights.

"Then again, on April 27, 1950, when the Special Committee on Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms of the Senate held its hearings, we once more had the privilege of appearing. We then were much impressed with Senator Roebuck's motion which favoured the inclusion in the Canadian constitution of a section guaranteeing human rights. At the same time we pointed out some of the areas in which human rights could be protected by federal legislation, including fair employment practices concerning persons coming within federal jurisdiction and the possible uses which can be made of the criminal law power reserved to the federal government. Indeed, some of these ideas have since become fully accepted means of advancing human rights in Canada and we are far from claiming more than a very modest share of credit.

"When a Citizens' Commission on Human Rights met in the National Capital on December 8, 1958, to mark the 10th Anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, we again made a submission, dealing inter alia with the Prime Minister's draft Bill of Rights, the principles of which we highly commended, coming however to the conclusion that they were deserving of a "better framework of application and enforcement than is presently provided."

"We gave further consideration in cooperation with other organizations and on April 29, 1959, we associated ourselves with a submission to the Prime Minister, made by a number of national groups under the leadership of the Association for Civil Liberties, welcoming "as an interim measure" the adoption by Parliament of a Canadian Bill of Rights Act, pending achievement of the ultimate goal of a constitutional amendment."

The statement referred to the Bicentenary of Canadian Jewry and the Act of 1832 granting full civil rights to the Jews of Canada and commended the Canadian Government for introducing the Bill and recommended its early adoption despite many shortcomings and the imperfect nature of the legislation. It urged the establishment of a Joint Committee of the Senate and of the House of Commons to lay the groundwork for seeking an amendment to the BNA Act. The submission further urged that clauses be inserted in all relevant federal enactments, such as the National Housing Act, the Civil Service Act, etc., asserting, specifically, the principle of non-discrimination as guaranteed by the Canadian Bill of Rights.

Members of the Committee were interested in specific recommendations. Among concrete suggestions advanced were recommendations for the immediate establishment of a Human Rights Section within the Department of Justice; that a referral be made to the Supreme Court of Canada for clarification of the sub-section of section 92 of the B.N.A. Act, "Property and Civil Rights" before any useful meetings could be held with the Provinces for a more inclusive Bill of Rights; that the role of the Department of Justice be clearly defined with Congress preferring the more positive position given in the former Bill C 60 over the present version of C 79; and doubts were expressed as to the need of a War Measures Act Reference as part of the new bill since in any national war emergency, if, as and when the Bill of Rights had to be suspended, Parliament could always do so while in its present bill form the provision weakens the intent of a Bill of Rights, suggesting it is only a peace time measure.

Old Minute Book In English And Yiddish Shows Ste. Sophie School Board All Jews!

The Canadian Jewish Congress has obtained a copy of an official minute book of the Scotland Protestant School Board of Ste. Sophie, for the period from July 4, 1927, to April 9, 1931, containing alternate pages in English and Yiddish. This rural school in Quebec is not a common school, but is officially the school of a Protestant minority, so that according to the strict letter of the law, Jews were not entitled to be elected as members of that Protestant School Board. Nevertheless, for many years all of the members of the Scotland Protestant School Board near Ste. Sophie were Jews, and there were Jews on the Protestant School Boards in La Macaza and New Glasgow, all in the Province of Quebec.

Jews settled in the forest land in those neighbourhoods as farmers as early as 1906 and were subsequently assisted with loans by the Jewish Colonization Association. In most cases, the only non-Catholic farmers in the neighbourhood of these settlements were Ukrainians who could not read or write English, and who had not become Canadian citizens by naturalization.

Because of this situation, the Jewish farmers formed the majority of the non-Catholics in those areas and were usually the only ones who could speak and write some English. In such cases all the members of the Protestant School Board in those areas were Jewish and not only acted as a Protestant School Board but also engaged a Hebrew teacher who also acted as shochet (ritual slaughterer of animals for food).

The Jewish Colonization Association in these cases paid half of the salary of the Hebrew teacher and shochet, and the local Jewish farmers were expected to raise the other half of the salary of the Hebrew teacher and shochet themselves.

The minutes in English dealt with those portions of the School Board's meetings referring exclusively to the operation of the English-language school, while the minutes in Yiddish dealt not only with the decisions of the School Board regarding the English school, but also with the decisions concerning the Hebrew teacher and shochet.

This is a curious instance of a rural Protestant School Board in the Province of Quebec, all of whose members were Jewish, which appears to have had no legal grounds for existence according to the Quebec Education Act, and whose official minute book contains the minutes written in Yiddish as well as in English. The Scotland Protestant School Board is no longer in existence, having been consolidated with another Protestant School Board in the Ste. Sophie district.

U. S. SENATOR CALLS ON ISRAELIS

Arabs should "reconsider the view that refugees are a political asset to be used against Israel and an economic liability in Arab lands. The Arabs must realize that to seem to make refugees serve a political purpose will in time become counter-productive," he declared.

He recommended "the start now being made in training some of the younger generation in trades and handicrafts."

The Israelis should at the same time realize, he said, that the existance of refugees from Palestine appealed to humanitarian instincts "just as did the Jewish refugees from Hitler." The longer this problem is left unsolved, he added, the more likely it is that Israel will be held responsible for the problem.

Looking beyond the refugee problem, Senator Fulbright asserted that peaceful economic and political development in the Middle East required acceptance by the Arab states that the world "could not stand idly aside" if they tried to drive the Israelis into the sea and acceptance by Israel that expansion of her borders by force "will not be tolerated."

The Senator reviewed what he termed the mistakes the United States has made in the Middle East, says the New York Times, including overemphasis on "the dangers of Soviet military intervention," and tendencies to "confuse nationalism with Communism." He said that "greater recognition of the dignity of newly independent nations and a small dose of humility would be deeply appreciated by most new nations."

NAZI FUGITIVE

father and mother in Libya, is reportedly engaged to a Jew.

Zind's arrest in West Germany occurred after he had boasted that he had served in a Nazi battalion that had killed several hundred Jews. In a report on Zind's activities since his escape, Dr. Robinson states that he visited West Germany secretly. "His sojourn became known through letters and postcards to his acquaintances", Dr. Robinson states in a memorandum to the World Jewish Congress executive. The cards were mailed in Germany. "It is assumed, however, that they were posted by some one after Zind had left."

In qualifying for membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulations, publishers are doing more than providing advertisers with the facts about the circulation of their publications.

They are also giving active support to the principle that advertising space should be bought and sold only on the basis of verified information — a principle that has contributed in large measure to the interests of all advertisers.

The Canadian Jewish Review is still the only Jewish publication in Canada printed in any language reaching the Jewish community which is not circulated by a group or an organization and which solicited the distinction of being a member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations
